The smartphone in your pocket can easily be turned into a high-tech spy tool and counter-surveillance device to rival anything that Ian Fleming's Q might have dreamt up. You can communicate secretly, browse the web anonymously, access the Deep Web and hidden networks, view banned content, download privately and continue using Twitter and Facebook if their services are ever blocked locally. Conversely, mobile devices are not secure unless you make them so. If somebody wants to know where you are at this precise moment, your smartphone will tell them - even if it is turned off.The push by the commercial world and more recently by law enforcement and surveillance agencies to monitor all we do has led to a counter-revolution. The Mobile Internet has evolved and so has its counter-surveillance tools. Rather like spies in a James Bond movie, mobile users have an array of digital tools to call upon, both to mask their identity and to provide real confidence that their correspondence, data and contacts are secure. There are smartphone apps that let you see in the dark or measure the height of a building. You can film and record without being rumbled; send emails, PMs and SMS that cannot be intercepted or read. You can even take over and control many public and private security cameras. Conrad Jaeger and Alan Pearce have written numerous books on cyber-security and all are available on Amazon.

Every time we fill out a form, a survey, or fill out personal information on the social media, it is there forever. You may not remember what you filled out ten years ago, but it is there for any prying eyes to see. What is even worse? Let's say you didn't give out much information on the web, but you browse the net often, you search and surf the web via search engines as we all do, sadly most of the search engines like Google and Yahoo keep a tab on you, they know what you search for, they know what you like and what you don't. They do this by keeping up with your IP (Internet Protocol) address. But don't give up, don't think it is not doable, because it is, and that is why you are reading this book, as I said I had done it, and you can too, just remember it is not something can be done overnight, it will take some time and may cost you a little money, but at the end you can achieve that privacy and freedom you deserve. Trust me you will enjoy that privacy too. One more thing, just because you are deleting yourself from the net, doesn't mean you can have an online life anymore because you can but little differently, and I will talk about how you can do that. So read and follow.. Here is a preview of what you will learn: How to go through the deactivation process How to find out what is out there about you How to start leaving false trails How to delete yourself from all the search engines like Google, Yahoo How to remove yourself from various websites How to remove yourself from Data clearinghouses 8 precise steps to stay private and secure online How to browse the internet privately How to choose the best Privacy tools What and how to use VPN (Virtual Private Network) and so much more...
