The America of the Latins: The term Latin America, first used in the 19th century, is something of a compromise. The region consists, with just one exception, of those parts of the American continent colonized by the Spanish. But the exception is too large to overlook - mighty Brazil, belonging in colonial history to Portugal. Spanish or Hispanic America is therefore inadequate.

The promotion of mestizaje, racial mixture, has a long history in Latin America, dating back to the 19th century. It's a product of the region's history of colonization and the uniquely hybrid makeup of its population as a result of the cohabitation of Europeans, indigenous groups, Africans, and (later) Asians.

Although Charles V, king of Spain, floated the idea of a canal in Panama as early as 1534, the first serious attempt was carried out by the French in 1880. The French had previously built a railroad through Panama, linking the Atlantic to the Pacific, an undertaking that relied heavily on slave labour.
