Researched and written in Japan with the full co-operation of the factory, here in definitive detail is the story of the Honda S2000 – a series of open two-seaters that built on the success of the NSX, helping the company justify its on-track exploits with a proper line of sporting machinery. Successful immediately, the S2000 models defended Honda's honour on the tracks, but it was in the showrooms where the S2000 excelled. After a major face-lift, it was eventually killed off in 2009, but is as popular today as it ever was as a modern classic for enthusiasts.

The S2000 was full of the advanced thinking that had typified Honda's early years. With a top speed of 150mph, it was comparable to the Porsche Boxster and the BMW Z3. Handling was racecar-like in its precision - the S2000 was everything that buyers would have expected a new generation Honda sports roadster to be.

The first behind-the-scenes, blow-by-blow account of the dynamic, limited-production S2000s design, testing, and development.
