The Stuff of Life is a memoir by journalist Karen Karbo, who unflinchingly and honestly recounts the death of her dad from lung cancer. It is a struggle for her to take care of her father, a tough, hardened cowboy who collects guns and definitely does not make the ideal patient. He continues to smoke a pack a day despite his diagnosis.

The Things of Life - Wikipedia

Life is a characteristic that distinguishes physical entities that have biological processes, such as signaling and self-sustaining processes, from those that do not, either because such functions have ceased (they have died), or because they never had such functions and are classified as inanimate. Various forms of life exist, such as plants, animals, fungi, protists, archaea, and bacteria.

In The Stuff of Life, Eric P. Widmaier deconstructs the fundamental processes of the human body and focuses on those vital biological substances that are particularly well understood. By examining the blueprints that dictate what we are, Widmaier gets us to rethink basic body processes that we thought we understood but didn't.
